

Jackie began her blending practice in the world of mixology after graduating with a degree in fine art from the San Francisco Art Institute. She garnered acclaim around the world with original, award-winning cocktails. It was the chance purchase of a perfumer's memoir from a small bookstore in Paris in 2012 that changed the trajectory of her career toward the ancient art of perfumery. Jackie found that the languages of mixology and perfumery were not-so-distant cousins, and her knack for creating delicious cocktails translated well into perfume making. She has studied with master natural perfumer, Mandy Aftel since 2013.

Jackie is now launching de Kloka which she has here tonight at Trax Gallery to smell and purchase. You can read more about her at www.dekloka.com